

Meeting the Graduate Faculty

All graduate students are encouraged to meet individually with each member of the graduate faculty in the department of agricultural education and studies. The purpose of this meeting is for faculty and graduate students to become better acquainted. More importantly, graduate students need to know faculty and their research programs in order to make informed decisions concerning the selection of their major professor and members of their graduate committee. Graduate students are expected to contribute toward accomplishing the goals of the department's research agenda.

Ph.D. students are required to present evidence that they have met with all members of the graduate faculty. This form must be submitted by the graduate student along with their POS committee form. The DOGE will not sign the POS committee form unless this form is attached with all required signatures.

By signing below, graduate faculty acknowledge that they have met with the following student. Signing this form, however, does not obligate the faculty member to serve on the student's POS committee.
